Assemblymen Dean Murray (AD3) and Anthony Palumbo (AD2) honored students from the Longwood Legislative Committee in the New York State Assembly on March 15th as they visited with our NYS representatives in Albany. View video clip

Editor's Thoughts: It was an honor and a privilege to, once again, accompany the student members of the Longwood Legislative Committee on our annual trip to Albany to meet with members of the NYS Assembly and Senate. Our students prepared exceptionally well with profound questions, observations, recommendations and action items for our NYS leadership--all presented with the utmost of professionalism, maturity and respect--and our assemblymen and senators were impressed...and in many cases challenged. Great job!

The projected figure represents the tightest controls on school taxation since New York State's property-tax cap took effect in the 2012-13 academic year, reflecting both the strict cap limitations and low inflation. Tentative deal averts lag payroll NEWSDAY; Mar 12, 2016

Under the agreement, the county will suspend its $12 million contribution to the union's benefit fund this year, and next year will begin repaying $1 million annually until 2028. The county also has agreed to guarantee that benefit fund reserves, which total $24 million, will not go below $12 million. The county, which is struggling with budget deficits, originally had planned to initiate the lag during the first pay period in April...read article

Declaring that the “state of the town is good and getting better,” Supervisor Romaine opened his address by saying that finances have been strengthened and the bond rating has improved. He also stated that he will continue to comply with the state tax levy caps, a standard that he wished “other taxing jurisdictions” would follow to help reduce the cost of living on Long Island. ...read press release

Seasoned Educator Takes the Dread Out of Evaluations for Teachers

EDUCATION WEEK; FEB 24, 2016

In all that has been written about teacher evaluation, there has been one glaring omission: For teachers, it is frightening. It’s intimidating to adjust to new performance expectations, anxiety-inducing when a job rating is attached to students’ test scores, and downright terrifying when less-than-rosy results come back. All of that makes Renee Pryor’s job one of the most challenging in Tennessee’s Lincoln County school district. Pryor is in reality responsible for making sure that evaluations of the district’s 250 teachers trigger useful feedback and targeted support—rather than leaving them frustrated and bewildered...read story
